MADE IN EINDHOVEN / THE NETHERLANDS

NYC WATER TOWER FURNITURE We just couldn't wait with a project that actually isn't a project yet. Together with Diederick Kraaijeveld, we ordered a container full of water tower wood from New York. He is going to use it to make sculptures and we will make furniture. We will then jointly present the work in the showroom, where our furniture is normally displayed. A lot of transport, you might think, but the idea is to ultimately have the furniture made in New York so that the wood, which is now always discarded, is reused locally.

When we finally received the container full of wood, I couldn't wait to get started. The reservoirs are made mainly of cedar wood, a wood that is very moisture and weather proof and very lightweight. In short, an ideal material for making structures on roofs. The as-wide-as-thick-table and chairs, made from oak, which we launched in April, will now gain a little cedar both in the form of an armchair. The width of the wood is almost the same width of the beams, whereby the patina of time remains visible on the roofs. We will also make a dresser with the cedar wood and by taking the beams, which vary in size, as starting point, and adjusting every cupboard accordingly, we will discard as little material as possible.

CLASSIC CUPBOARD IN SCRAPWOOD The Classic Cupboard was Piet Hein Eek's first piece exploring scrapwood material, and is meticulously crafted in Piet Hein Eek's studio using traditional wood-working techniques. It is produced without a lacquer finish for a full expression of the wood's texture. Each piece is unique, based on the material available at the time.

CRISIS The Crisis collection owes its name to the first crisis we experienced as an established company and which lasted from 2001 until 2002. It turned out to be an insignificant one and, like many others, we weren't affected. So we then went and bought a computer-operated milling cutter. The first products we made with this machine were the Crisis furniture range. The initial concept was to deliver them as flat pack, and thus cheaper, furniture. Yet crisis or not, the customer wasn't interested in DIY furniture. For example, whenever we sold a chair in a bag, parts were often missing. However, the assembled versions did become a success.

Every time the word crisis appeared in the newspapers, we sold more, and so over the years we expanded the series. In 2014 we developed an entirely new range of Crisis furniture consisting of small tables and stools and a large modular table we left at home because of its size.

Standing next to your bed or in the cupboard, hanging on the wall as down or up-lighter, but also on a stick as desk lamp or as reading lamp next to the sofa. The one mold lamps in their naked form have now been produced in various glazes.
